Announcement

Graduate Teaching Fellowship Awards
Duke Kunshan University
2020 Spring Semester

Duke Kunshan University (DKU) is offering up to six Teaching Assistant Fellowships (TAF) for the 2020 Spring semester. DKU is a new, Joint Venture University located in Kunshan China, about 30 km from Shanghai, China. DKU is a global University with faculty members and students from all parts of the world.

For more information about DKU please visit: https://dukekunshan.edu.cn/en/about

The Teaching Assistant Fellowships will support the emerging, interdisciplinary science and mathematics curricula of DKU’s Undergraduate Degree Program. Successful applicants will support instruction in physics, biology, chemistry, computer science, mathematics, and statistics. Instructional support includes assisting in teaching laboratory and recitation sections and working with students on course content. Course delivery is in English, including class periods, laboratories, and recitations.

The Fellowship is appropriate for graduate students in existing graduate programs. Also eligible are senior undergraduate students who have completed their coursework and are now involved in research and writing.

Initial appointments will be for spring semester, 2020. Appointments may be extended upon review of the fellow’s performance and mutual agreement from the student, student’s dissertation advisor, his/her home institution, and the hosting institution (DKU). The fellowship will include a stipend.

The application process is now open and will close until the positions are filled. For questions about the TAF positions and application process, please contact:

Dr. William E. Winner
william.winner@dukekunshan.edu.cn.

Submit applications including, a letter of interest, a resume, transcripts and arrange to have three referee letters with one of the letters from the applicant’s dissertation advisor sent to:

Ms. Gu Yijun at: yijun.gu@dukekunshan.edu.cn.
Duke Kunshan University
Kunshan, China 215316